Q: How does Student Affairs know what the staff wants in relation to working from home versus working on campus? and in relation to hybrid schedules

A: Managers had been having conversations with employees, and they need to touch base with their employees who may have questions or concerns about how hybrieds ling may work. Everyone is different in relations to needs, so communication were. For telecommuting, there is still a lot of work we need to do to make sure folks are supported and can thrive in their work environments

Further Question to ConsideWhat if managersinilaterally make decisions about telecommuting for their employees, stating it is in their best interestwithout proper consultation with their staff?

Q: We've noticed that some students that have begun their academic careers with-zooby are having issues with participation in a group or class setting ften just having a blank screen and not speaking

A: On an individual level with appointments, there is not an issue with participation in most cases. But in group settings where there is a blank scriber could be because of
